

Should I of these the liberty regard,
Who freed, as to their antient patrimony,
Unhumb'd, unrepentant, unreform'd,
Headlong would follow. Milton's Par. Regain'd.
My unrepent'd, and unrepenting breath,
Was snatch'd away by the swift hand of death. Roscommon.
All his arts reveal,
From the first moment of his vital breath,
To his last hour of unrepenting death. Dryden.
Nor tyrants fierce, that unrepenting die,
E'er felt such rage as thou. Pope's Rape of the Lock.
UNREPENTING. adj. Not perversely complaining.
Barefoot as the trod the flinty pavement,
Her footsteps all along were mark'd with blood;
Yet silent on the pass'd, and unrepining. Roscoe.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not filled.
Some air retreated thither, kept the mercury out of the unreplenish'd space. Boyle.
UNREPLENISHABLE. adj. Not to be refitted from penal death.
Within me is a hell; and there the poison
Is, as a fiend, confin'd, to tyrannize
In unreplevitable condemned blood. Shakspeare, K. John.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not unbraided; not censured.
Sir John Hotham, unreplevitable, uncured by any imprecation of mine, pays his head. K. Charles.
UNREPLENISHABLE. adj. Not liable to blame.
You hath he reconciled, to present you holy, unblameable, and unreplevitable in his fight. Col. i. 22.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not censured.
1. Not censured.
Christians have their churches, and unreplevitable exercise of religion. Sandys's Journey.
2. Not liable to censure.
The antique world, in his first flow'ring youth,
With gladfome thanks, and unreplevitable truth,
The gifts of foreign bounty did embrace. Fairy Queen.
If I give thee honour due,
Mirth, admit me of thy crew,
To live with her, and live with thee,
In unreplevitable pleasures free. Milton.
UNREPLENISHABLE. adj. Not opposite.
When scripture doth yield us natural laws, what particular order is thereunto most agreeable; when positive, which way to make laws unreplevitable unto them. Hobbes, b. iii.
UNREPLENISHABLE. adj. Not creditable.
When we see wife men examples of duty, we are convinced that piety is no unreplevitable qualification, and that we are not to be ashamed of our virtue. Rogers.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not asked.
With what security can our ambassadors go, unreplevitable
of the Turkish emperor, without his safe conduct? Knight.
UNREPLENISHABLE. adj. Not to be retaliated.
Some will have it that all mediocrity of folly is foolish, and because an unreplevitable evil may ensue, an indifferent convenience must be omitted. Brown's Vulg. Errors.
So unreplevitable is God's love, and so insolvent are we,
that that love vastly improves the benefit, by which alone we might have pretended to some ability of retribution. Boyle.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not regarded with anger.
The fallings of these holy persons, passed not unreplevitable
by God; and the same scripture which informs us of the sin, records the punishment. Rogers.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not limited.
1. Not limited by any private convenience.
The piety our heavenly father will accept, must consist in an entire, unreplevitable obedience to his commands; since whoever offends in one precept, is guilty of the whole law. Rogers.
2. Open; frank; concealing nothing.
UNREPLENISHED. n. f. Unlimitedness; frankness; largeness.
The tenderness and unreplevitable of his love, made him think those his friends or enemies, that were so to God. Boyle.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not limited.
1. Without limitations.
I am not to embrace absolutely and unreplevitable the opinion of Aristotle. Boyle.
2. Without concealment; openly.
I know your friendship to me is extensive; and it is what I owe to that friendship, to open my mind unreplevitable to you. Pope.
UNREPLENISHED. n. f. Openness; frankness.
I write with more unreplevitable; than ever man wrote. Pope.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not opposed.
1. Not opposed.
The ethereal spaces are perfectly fluid; they neither assist,
nor retard, the planets, which roll through as free and unreplevitable, as if they moved in a vacuum. Bentley's Sermons.
2. Resistless; such as cannot be opposed.
Those gods! whose unreplevitable might Have sent me to these regions void of light. Dryden.
What wonder then, thy hairs should feel
The conqu'ring force of unreplevitable steel? Pope.

UNRESISTING. adj. Not opposing; not making resistance.
What noise? that spirit's posess'd with haste,
That wounds th' unresisting postern with those strokes. Shakspeare.
The sheep was sacrific'd on no pretence,
But meek and unresisting innocence:
A patient, useful creature. Dryden.
Since the planets move horizontally through the liquid and unresisting spaces of the heav'ns, where no bodies at all, or locality which the first impulse impress'd. Bentley's Sermons.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not to be solved; insoluble.
For a man to run headlong, while his ruin stares him in the face; still to press on to the embraces of sin, is a problem unresisting upon any other ground, but that sin infatuates before it destroys. South's Sermons.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not determined; having made no resolution.
1. Not determined; having made no resolution.
On the western coast
Rideth a puissant navy: to our shores
Throng many doubtful, hollow-hearted friends;
Unarm'd, and unresisting to beat their back. Shakspeare.
Turnus, unresisting of flight,
Moves tardy back, and just recedes from fight. Dryden.
2. Not solved; not cleared.
I do not so magnify this method, to think it will perfectly clear every hard place, and leave no doubt unresisting. Locke.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not resolving.
She her arms about her unresisting husband threw. Dryden.
UNRESISTING. adj. Inattentive; taking little notice.
I will converse with iron-witted fools,
And unresisting boys; none are for me
That look into me with confident eyes. Shakspeare.
UNRESISTING. n. f. Disquiet; want of tranquillity; inquietness.
Wife behest, those creeping flames by reason to subdue,
Before their rage grew to so great unresisting. Fairy Queen.
Repose, sweet gold, for thy unresisting,
That have their aims out of the empress's chest. Shakspeare.
Disarm'd confusion all possess'd;
Th' afflicted troop, hearing their plot decry'd:
Then runs amaz'd distrust, with sad unresisting.
To this, to that; to fly, to stand, to hide. Daniel.
Silence, in truth, would speak my sorrows best;
For deep wounds, can least their feelings tell;
Yet, let me borrow from mine own unresisting,
But time to bid him, whom I lov'd, farewell. Wotton.
Up they rose,
As from unresisting, and each the other viewing,
Soon found their eyes how open'd, and their minds
How darken'd. Milton's Par. Lost, b. ix.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not restored.
1. Not restored.
The son of an unresisting traitor has no pretences to the quality of his ancestors. Collier on Duelling.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not confined; not hindered.
My tender age, in luxury was train'd,
With idle ease, and pageants entertain'd,
My hours my own, my pleasures unresisting. Dryden.
2. Licentious; loose.
The taverns he daily doth frequent,
With unresisting, loose companions. Shakspeare.
3. Not limited.
Were there in this aphorism an unresisting truth, yet were it not reasonable to infer from a caution, a non-usage, or abolition. Brown's Vulg. Errors.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not revoked; not recalled.
The penitence of the criminal may have numbered him amongst the saints, when our unresisting uncharitableness may send us to unquenchable flames. Governor of the Tongue.
Nothing but plain malevolence can justify diuision. Malevolence shewn in a single, outward act, unresisting, or in habitual ill-nature. Collier on Prieodship.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not told; not discovered.
Had ye once seen these her celestial treasures,
And unresisting pleasures,
Then would ye wonder, and her praises sing. Spenser.
"Dear, fatal name! rest ever unresisting;
Nor pass these lips, in holy silence seal'd." Pope.
UNRESISTING. adj. Not revenged.
So might we die, not envying them that live;
So would we die, not unresisting all. Taylor.
Unhonour'd though I am,
Not unresisting that impious act shall be. Dryden.
Great Pompey's shade complains that we are slow,
And Scipio's ghost walks unresisting amongst us. Adams.
UNRESISTING. adj. Irreverent; disrespectful.
See not your bride in these unresisting robes. Shakspeare.
Fie! unresisting tongue! to call her bad,
Whose sovereignty is oft thou hast profan'd,
With twenty thousand soul-confounding oaths. Shakspeare.

UNREVERENTLY. adv. Disrespectfully.
I did unreverently blame the gods,
Who wake for thee, though thou snore for thyself. B. Jonson.
UNREVERENT. adj. Not revoked; not repealed.
She hath offer'd to the doom,
Which unreversed stands in effectual force,
A sea of melting tears. Shakspeare.
UNREVERED. adj. Not recalled.
Hear my decree, which unreversed shall stand. Milton.
UNREVERED. adj. Not rewarded; not recompensed.
Not unreversed let your prince complain,
Providence takes care that good offices may not pass un- rewarded. L'Estrange.
Since for common good I yield the fairy,
My private loss let grateful Greece repair;
Not unreversed let your prince complain,
That he alone has fought and bled in vain. Pope.
To UNREVERED. v. a. To solve an enigma; to explain a problem.
Some kind power unriddle where it lies,
Whether my heart be faulty, or her eyes! Suckling.
The Platonic principles will not unriddle the doubt. Glover.
A reverse often clears up the passage of an old poet, as the poet often serves to unriddle the reverse. Addison.
UNRIDDLE. adj. Not ridiculous.
If an indifferent and unriddle object could draw this authority to a smile, he hardly could with perpetuity resist proper motives thereof. Brown's Vulg. Errors.
To UNRIDDLE. v. a. To strip of the tackle.
Rhodes is the sovereign of the sea no more;
Their ships unriddle, and spent their naval force. Dryden.
UNRIDDLE. Wrong. in Spenser, this word should perhaps be unright.
What in most English writers useth to be loose, and as it were unright, in this author is well grounded, timely framed, and strongly trussed up together. Glossary to Spenser's Kal.
Shew that thy judgment is not unright. Wisd. xii.
UNRIGHT. adj. Unjust; wicked; sinful; bad.
Octavius here leapt into his room,
And it usurped by unrighteous doom;
But he his title justify'd by might. Fairy Queen, b. ii.
Within a month!
Ere yet the fall of most unrighteous tears,
Had left the flushing in her galled eyes,
She married.—Oh most wicked speed!
Let the wicked man forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord. Is. lv.
UNRIGHT. adv. Unjustly; wickedly; sinfully.
For them
Their foes a deadly Shibboleth devise:
By which unrighteous it was decreed,
That none to trust, or profit should succeed,
Who would not swallow first a poisonous wicked weed. Dryden.
A man may fall under severely under public disgrace, or is unrighteous oppressed.
UNRIGHT. n. f. Wickedness; injustice.
Our Romanists can no more abide this proposition converted, than themselves. All sin, say they, is a transgression of the law; but every transgression of the law is not sin. The apostle, therefore, turns it for us: all unrighteous- ness, says he, is sin; but every transgression of the law is un- righteousness, saith Austin upon this place. Hall.
Some things have a natural deformity in them, as perjury, perfidiousness, unrighteousness, and ingratitude. Tillotson.
UNRIGHT. adj. Not right; not just.
Thou, which know'st the way
To plant unrighteous kings, wilt know again
To pluck him headlong from th' usurped throne. Shakspeare.
To UNRIGHT. v. a. To deprive of a ring.
Be forc'd to impeach a broken hedge,
And pigs unright at wit. Hudibras.
To UNRIGHT. v. a. [This word is improper; there being no difference between rip and unrip; and the negative particle is therefore of no force; yet it is well authorized.] To cut open.
Like a traitor
Didst break that vow, and, with thy treach'rous blade,
Unrip the bowels of thy sov'reign's son. Shakspeare.
He could not now, with his honour, to unrip, and put a lie upon all that he had said and done before, as to deliver him up. Bacon's Hen. VII.
We are angry with searchers, when they break open trunks, and unrip packs, and open sealed letters. Taylor.
Cato well observes, that friendship ought not to be un- ripped, but unfittich. Collier.
UNRIPE. n. f.
1. Immature; not fully concocted.
Purpose is of violent birth, but poor validity;
Which now, like fruits unripe, sticks on the tree,
But fall unshaken when they mellow be. Shakspeare.
In this northern tract our hoarser throats,
Utter unripe and ill-constrained notes. Waller.

He fix'd his unripe vengeance to defer,
Sought not the garden, but retir'd unseen,
To brood in secret on his gather'd spleen. Dryden.
2. Too early.
Who hath not heard of the valiant, wife, and just Dori-laus, whose unripe death doth yet, so many years since, draw tears from virtuous eyes? Sidney, b. iii.
UNRIPPED. adj. Not matured.
Were you with these, you'd soon forget
The pale, unripe beauties of the north. Addison's Cato.
UNRIPPED. n. f. Immaturity; want of ripeness.
The ripeness, or unripeness, of the occasion, must ever be well weighed; and generally it is good to commit the beginnings of all great actions to Argus, with his hundred eyes;
and the ends to Briareus, with his hundred hands. Bacon.
UNRIPPED. adj.
1. Having no competitor.
Honour forbid! at whose unripe d' shrine,
Ease, pleasure, virtue, all our fix resign. Pope.
2. Having no peer or equal.
To UNRIPPED. v. a. To open what is rolled or convolved.
O honor!
The queen of nations, from her antient seat,
Is sunk for ever in the dark abyss;
Time has unrip'd her glories to the last,
And now clasp'd up the volume. Dryden's All. p. 1.
UNROMANTICK. adj. Contrary to romance.
It is a bait, an unromantic spirit not to wait on you. Swift.
To UNRIPPED. v. a. To strip off the roof or covering of houses.
The rabble should have unrip'd the city,
Ere so prevail'd with me. Shakspeare, Coriolanus.
UNROOSTED. adj. Driven from the roost.
Thou dotard! thou art woman-tir'd, unroosted,
By thy old dame Parlet here. Shakspeare, Winter-Tales.
UNROUGH. adj. Smooth.
Sward's son,
And many unrough youths, that even now
Protect their first of manhood. Shakspeare, Macbeth.
To UNROOST. v. a. To tear from the roots; to extirpate; to eradicate.
Since you've made the days and nights as one,
To wear your gentle limbs in my affairs,
Be bold; you do so grow in my requital,
That nothing can unroot you. Shakspeare, The Merchant of Venice.
Unroot the forest oaks, and bear away
Flocks, folds, and trees, an undistinguish'd prey. Dryden.
UNROUNDED. adj. Not shaped, not cut to a round.
Those unrip'd pilletoles,
That more than cannon-shot avails or lets;
Which, negligently left unrounded, look Like many-angled figures in the book
Of some dread conjurer. Dante.
UNROYAL. adj. Unprincipled; not royal.
By the advice of his envious counsellors, he sent them with unroyal reproaches to Muldorus and Pyrocles, as if they had done traitorously. Sidney.
To UNROYAL. v. a. To cease from commotion, or agitation.
Where'er he guides his finny couriers,
The waves unroyal, and the sea subsides. Dryden.
UNRUFFLED. adj. Calm; tranquil; not tumultuous.
Vent all thy passion, and I'll stand its shock,
Calm and unruffled as a summer's sea,
When not a breath of wind flies o'er its surface. Addison.
UNRULED. adj. Not directed by any superiour power.
The realm was left, like a ship in a storm, amidst all the raging furies, unruled and undirected of any; for they to whom she was committed, faint in their labour, or forlorn their charge. Spenser.
UNRUIN. n. f. [from unruin.] Turbulence; tumultuousness; licentiousness.
By the negligence of some who were hardly to be commanded, and by the unruin of others, who without leave were gone a-dore, so fair an occasion of victory was neglected. Knot.
No care was had to curb the unruin of anger, or the exorbitance of desire. Amongst all their sacrifices, they never sacrificed so much as one lust. South's Sermons.
UNRUIN. adj. Turbulent; ungovernable; licentious; tumultuous.
In sacred bands of wedlock ty'd
To Theron, a loose unruin swain;
Who had more joy to range the forest wide,
And chase the savage beast with busy pain. Fairy Queen.
Down I come, like glitt'ring Phaeton, Wanting the manage of an unruin jade. Shakspeare, Rich. II.
The belt and foundell of his time hath been but rath;
then must we look from his age, to receive but unruin waywardness. Shakspeare, K. Lear.
The tongue is an unruin evil, full of deadly poison. Is. iii.
Thou dost a better life, and nobler vigour give;
Dost each unruin appetite controul. Roscommon.
